AWARDS AND RECOGNITION WON BY FACULTY

David Goodman, East Asian Languages and Cultures, will be working through the summer and into the fall of 1992 as an associate in the Program for the Study of Cultural Values and Ethics, on a book to be published by the Free Press. The work is tentatively titled, Japan and the Jews: An Inquiry into the Quality of Japanese Intellectual Life. The book will be coauthored with Masanori Miyazawa, Professor of History at Doshisha Women's College, Kyoto, Japan.

GRANTS AWARDED & PROJECTS FUNDED

The Committee has contributed towards the research expenses of University of Illinois faculty working on a variety of topics within Jewish studies.

Maurice Friedberg received an award for part of travel expenses to Israel so that he could present a paper at an international seminar on Broadcasting to the Soviet Union.

The Committee on Jewish Culture and Society, in collaboration with the C-U Jewish Federation's Council on Community Relations, financed a project for a series of visits by English graduate students to local schools whose students were scheduled to see the production of the Merchant of Venice at Krannert Center.

The four graduate students, all of them advanced Ph.D. candidates in early modern drama, were Alan Walworth, Tamise Van Pelt, Barb Sebek and Amy Farmer. Between April 7 and 14, 1992, they visited the following schools, reaching an estimated 500 students:

Centennial High School, Champaign
University High School, Urbana
North Ridge Middle School, Danville
Jamaica High School, Sidell
Urbana Middle School and High School.

Qiang Zeng of the China Institute of Contemporary International Relations was sponsored by the Committee for a half-year research program (January 1992 through June 1992) in American Jewish Studies. This program involved a detailed study of the American-Jewish community's views on Israel and on the Middle East.

Allan Metz, Assistant Professor/Assistant Subject Specialist for Latin America, was partially funded for a trip to College Park, MD for research related to ongoing work on Argentinian Jewry in October 1991. He was also partially funded for a combined conference/research trip to Austin, TX in March 1992. His research involved a comparison of the impact of nationalism on the Jews of Argentina and Chile in the 1930s.

Amy Schiffman won the Committee's award of $500, donated by the Champaign-Urbana Jewish Federation, to a graduating senior who is planning to do graduate work in the area of Judaica. She has been accepted to the joint MA program in Jewish communal work at the Jewish Theological Seminary and Columbia University and to the program sponsored by the University of Pennsylvania and Graetz College in Philadelphia.

A NOTE FROM KAREN SCHMIDT, JEWISH STUDIES BIBLIOGRAPHER:

We spent all of our regular monograph and serial money during FY92. About 75 per cent of what we received are U.S. titles, while the rest are European, mainly German language, books. We remained static with our serials as there is no money to order any new titles unless money is transferred from monographs. There were no requests for new serial titles, but this is an area that the faculty might want to look at closely in FY93.

There were two major acquisitions of primary source material made possible by special funds. Michael and Elaine Avner paid for the purchase of America and the Holocaust, a 13 volume set costing $1750.00. An NEH grant paid for American Zionism, a 15 volume set costing $1900.00. Both of these titles are excellent basic primary source items of interest to many disciplines.

In addition, the extensive approval plans that the Acquisitions unit maintains have supplemented the Jewish Studies collection significantly. We received about 70 books valued at approximately $2600.00 through these plans, which pick up U.S. and British university press and major presses publications. Through the European Blanket Order, we got another 60 books, valued at about $1800.00. Coupled with the two large sets, we were able to acquire about $9970.00 in new books for Jewish Studies this past year.

Here are some summary data from FY 92 for the Jewish Studies funds available to the Library:

Budget

Regular Funds

Monographs:	$1917.00
Serials:	$ 1001.00
Total:	$ 2998.00

Friends and Special Purchase Funds

Toby-Judaica	$ 840.00

COURSES

As the appendix indicates, the enrollment for courses in Jewish Culture and Society showed an increase from last year. There were 1141 students enrolled in our courses in 1991-92, compared to 1044 in 1990-91. (The figure does not include independent study courses). The increase reflects the fact that the enrollment figures in Economics and some History courses were up. In addition, a new course, German 200/396 Jewish Writers/ German Literature, was offered in the Spring of 1992.

MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE

The following faculty members served on the Committee for the academic year 1991-92:

DIVISIONS BETWEEN
TRADITIONALISM AND LIBERALISM
IN THE AMERICAN JEWISH COMMUNITY

Cleft or Chasm

edited by Michael Shapiro

Four essays that deal with the theme of the apparent rise in tension, in the last decade, within the American Jewish community. Includes: Alan Zuckerman's "The Structural Sources of Cohesion and Division in the American Jewish Community"; Mark Washofsky's "The Proposal for a National Beit Din: Is it Good for the Jews?"; Blu Greenberg's "The Feminist Revolution in Orthodox Judaism in America"; and Mark Shechner's "Literature in Search of a Center."

"... all four essays held my attention, and I learned something from each of them. ... All of the authors eschew jargon and academic mumbo-jumbo. These essays should be of special interest to the non-specialist, for the educated layperson who is interested in the broader issues revolving around the future of the American Jewish community. This volume will also make a useful addition to college and university libraries." - Joseph Haberer, editor of Shofar, in Scholarly Research and Review.

"... these essays should be of interest to all those interested in today's America. They provide us with methods of understanding the cohesion and division within American society in general by focusing on one small segment of America's population. This is truly an important and useful collection of significant essays on contemporary American life." - Gary G. Porton, Program for the Study of Religion, University of Illinois.

AWARDS AND RECOGNITION WON BY FACULTY

Rina Donchin, Hebrew, received a MUCIA Travel Award to partially cover the expenses of continued collaboration in Israel on the development of a multi-media program for Intermediate Level Hebrew.

Fred Gottheil, Economics, received the "Commerce Council Outstanding Teaching Award" for his teaching of Israeli Economy and other subjects.

Marvin Weinbaum, Political Science, received the campus "Luckman Distinguished Teaching Award" for his teaching of Middle East politics and other subjects.

GRANTS AWARDED AND PROJECTS FUNDED

The Committee has made modest contributions towards the travel expenses of University of Illinois faculty attending seminars and conferences central to their research or teaching in Jewish Studies.

Josh Shanes won the Committee's award of $500, donated by the Champaign-Urbana Jewish Federation, to a graduating senior who is planning to do graduate work in the area of Judaica. A Rotary Fellow, Mr. Shanes plans to spend 1993-94 at Hebrew University in Jerusalem before entering the Ph.D. program in modern European History at the University of Wisconsin. His general interest is the history of the interactions of Jews with the nations and cultures of Europe. At the University of Illinois, Mr. Shanes was Chancellor's Scholar and a James Scholar, a columnist for the Daily Illini, and an active member of Hillel and other Jewish student groups. He wrote his senior honors thesis on the impact of the television "docu-drama" Holocaust on viewers in America and Europe.

Randi Storch won the Committee's award of $250, donated by the Champaign-Urbana Jewish Federation, to a graduate student doing research in some aspect of Judaic, Hebraic or Jewish Studies. Ms. Storch is a Ph.D. candidate in American History. She plans to study primary documents pertaining to Yiddish culture, both in Europe and the United States, in order to do original research on the history of Yiddish-speaking immigrants in the United States, and will use the award to study Yiddish at the YIVO Institute.

REPORT FROM KAREN SCHMIDT, JEWISH STUDIES BIBLIOGRAPHER

Jewish Studies acquisitions continued at much the same rate during 1992-1993 as it has in previous years. The fund received a 4% increase on the serials portion of its budget, to cover a small portion of the anticipated 10% serial cost increase. There is little probability of any substantial increase in this fund in the coming years, as the Library budget tightens and focuses on funding disciplines that are high priorities within the university.

During this fiscal year, the Library purchased over $2200 in monographs, and about $700 in serials directly from the Jewish Studies funds. In addition, many publications of general interest were purchased by the History Library and the Undergraduate Library, including such important works as most volumes in The Sephardic Classical Library.

The university press and publisher-based approval plans continue to be an important supplement to the acquisition of Jewish Studies material. On these plans alone, the library received 175 domestic titles valued at approximately $8000. The European blanket orders, which cover Germany, Italy, France and Spain, accounted for about 100 more titles in various areas of interest to Jewish Studies. Annette Schoenberg, who works in Acquisitions with these plans, has proven to be extremely helpful in pointing out items of interest to Jewish Studies.

There continues to be a heavy demand on the Jewish Studies funds for videos and new periodicals. The rule established some time ago in the Library which requires that a new periodical cannot be purchased unless another is cancelled or money transferred from monographs keeps this collection from adding new journals.

The funding from Friends money (the Toby fund) is very small this year - $115.16 - and only a few items were purchased with this money. The Toby endowment provided $1446 in FY93 for new purchases. In the next fiscal year, the Library will be heavily in the University Capital Campaign, a program which seems to hold promise for the Jewish Studies fund. The collection also received small gifts of books or money from time to time in memory of relatives.

COURSES

As the appendix indicates, the enrollment for courses in Jewish Culture and Society showed a decrease from last year. There were 990 students enrolled in our courses in 1992-93, compared to 1141 in 1991-92. (These figures do not include independent study courses). The figures reflect the fact that only 21 courses in Jewish Culture and Society were offered in 1992-93, compared to 31 in 1991-92. However, it is worth noting that enrollment figures for most courses went up from last year. In the Modern Hebrew Program, enrollment showed an increase of nearly 40% from the previous year, from 135 students in 1991-92, to 188 in 1992-93.
